RE: Letter of Reference

To Whom It May Concern,

Ideal Due Diligence provides a great service and their team of permitting experts are second to none. One of the biggest factors in project delays is permitting. Building Departments across the country have a back log of work to complete and our projects are constantly at risk of delays in the pre-construction phase.

The team at IDD led by owner, Amanda Caldwell, is extremely conversant of the permitting process and has built relationships with Federal, State and Local governing bodies throughout North America easing the tension of an already stressed environment. The level of detail provided in their communications and in their reporting system leaves very little "why" questions that can be asked. Their commitment to your needs exemplifies what an industry partnership should be. I will continue to partner with IDD in the future and would recommend their services to colleagues and competitors alike.

Sincerely,

Raymond Gibson
