RE: Controlling Wireless Costs

I was initially skeptical about Jill Lowry of Schooley Mitchell's claims to save our company money on the costs of our cellular service for our phones and tablets. Prior to bringing in Jill Lowry to look at our wireless services, I was quite confident that we had the very best pricing options available, and prices that I was sure could not be beat. Much to my surprise, Jill found an additional 34% savings by changing to a top wireless provider – even with the upgrade of several of our smartphones. Not only were our costs for these services lowered, but we now have improved service quality as well. In addition to the fact that there was no risk and no upfront investment to have Schooley Mitchell perform the analysis, they undertake a continual monitoring of our services to ensure that we have the best pricing for the best in class services available in the marketplace. Right away, Jill proactively addressed a costly data overage directly with the provider.

This type of outsourced expertise is a huge help to growing companies like ours. I would recommend Jill Lowry and Schooley Mitchell to any business that wants to save money and time, knowing that they are always receiving the best in class services at the lowest available prices.

Sincerely,
