To Whom it May Concern

Founded in 2008 by Adam Wainio and based out of Apopka, Florida, Ballistic Advantage is a manufacturer of high-end rifle barrels and other firearm components.

At Ballistic Advantage we are committed to making the kind of barrels that delight the most demanding users. True and reliable performance no matter how hot the action or how gritty the conditions.

We live at the corner of old-fashioned craftsmanship and state-of-the-art manufacturing; of practical know-how and material science. While our barrels rank among the best money can buy, our prices rank among the best value for money. Thanks to our unique, proprietary processes we own the sweet spot where superior quality meets affordability.

As with any other business, keeping our costs and expenses under control is a critical aspect of our operations. In November 2018 we were engaged by Leonardo Luna of Schooley Mitchell who offered to perform a cost-free analysis of our expenses in Telecom and Merchant Fees for our business. He only needed a copy of our bills, contracts and a brief meeting of about 45 minutes to understand how we operate and how we use our services.

6 weeks later, Leonardo came back with a thorough and comprehensive report detailing our schedule of fees and transactional costs, both for our merchant and telecom services. The report included a complete set of recommendations to save up to 22% in our costs of telephone and internet services, and 11% in our merchant fees. We really appreciated how hard Leo worked for us in a professional and skilled manner.

The best part is that we did not incur any cost or expense to obtain this valuable information. Schooley Mitchell fees would only be a portion of any actual generated savings.

I recommend any business interested in taking control of their expenses and making sure they're getting the best services for their money to talk to Leonardo Luna and Schooley Mitchell.
