To whom it my concern:

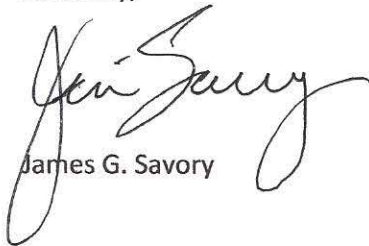

It has been a pleasure to work with Heath Steel and Heath Construction on the just completed operations center developed for a major Denver oil and gas company.

As a developer and facilities management company we have had long standing relationships with general contractors and building suppliers, this recently completed project with Heath was a first time event. The bid process included firms that had a long standing history and established relationship with our company. Heath came in with a strong very thoughtful bid and introduction to their entire team at the first meeting. Through the design and construction process the communication between us was clear and effective. The final building was delivered on time and on budget, with the shortest punch list in memory.

The highest marks we can give an organization is our plan to work with them again. With Heath Steel and Heath Construction we are about to start another and more complex project.

If for any reason you wish for further information please call.

Sincerely,

James G. Savory
